erson murder as illustrating the point.

Sergeant Schwab told a story one day last week showing the peculiar ideas some people have of the duties and functions of the police force. He said: "I was on duty at the telephone one time. A man had a fight with a companion in a street car. There were a dozen or so other passengers aboard, all women. Among them were a number of young ladies attending a boarding school in the north part of the city. The man who began the fight was turned over to an officer and held on the charge of assault and battery. The officer 190k the names of the passengers, and notified them they would be expected to appear in Police Court as witnesses. The young ladies were horrified at the idea of having to appear in connection with a case of that kind, and tried to hit upon some plan for avoiding the necessity. They went into a drug store and telephoned police headquarters. I answered the call.

about doing their own work, and finally the subject came to that point when they were relating personal experiences. One said: "I hadn't a maid for a time and had to do my own cooking. One night after supper I said to Mr. ---, 'You will have to go to the grocery after some bread or I shall have to make some muffins for breakfast. Which would you rather do?' He did no wait long to say, 'I'll go after the bread; The others laughed, and a second one said. "That reminds me of the time I was to cook chicken for dinner. When my husband came in I said, 'I believe the cat must have come in the kitchen, though I do not see how she could, for the door and window have both been shut all the time.' 'Why what has happened?' said he, 'I cannot find but two legs of the chicken.' He quietly asked, 'How many legs has a chicken?'

There is a mother on the North Side who has a family of small children. One day she became very much interested in a book and it seemed as if she must read it, but the children bothered her very much. Finally she thought of a scheme whereby sh could get rid of the children, so she took a broom and put a red cloth on it and hung it in the window. She then told the children they must play she had the smallpox, and that they must not dare come near her, for they would catch it. They kept away beautifully all the afternoon and she finished the book. Some of the neighbors also saw the red flag and asked the children what was the matter, and they said smallpox, and the report was current on that side of town in a very short time. Not only the children but the neighbors kept away until they learned of the scheme.

A woman who lives in a plain little house lovely children, but the woman of the big on the visit, but she missed the little voices, and she came to the conclusion that she would rather live in a house with living statuary than in one with bronze and
